

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

The world's oldest person!

Learning Outcome

Describe unusual events through a wider range of B1 language in both work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- How old do you think the world's oldest person is?
- Would you want to live to the age of 100? Why or why not?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about people's habits and about staying healthy.
- I can talk about things I have done or things that have happened.
- I can talk about things I am supposed to do and things that are supposed to happen.

Let's Explore!

Let's read about Cindy Jones - the oldest person in the world! Is "reverse aging" possible?

* "Reverse aging" means to become younger instead of older.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Cindy Jones has become the oldest person in the world this year. She has enjoyed eating bacon for over a hundred years. Jones is now in her 116th year. At 115 years old, she has been verified as one of two people still alive who were born in the 19th century. Cindy is a supercentenarian — a person who has lived beyond 110 years. Today, surprisingly, there are around 30 supercentenarians among us. Even though Jones' accomplishment of longevity isn't unparalleled, her bill of health, which is almost perfect, has amazed medical professionals. To try and discover how I might live to be a supercentenarian, I interviewed Jones.

From the beginning, Cindy has led a simple life: no parties, smoking, alcohol or drugs. Her daily regimen is uncomplicated. With a glass of water every morning, she is supposed to take her blood-pressure medication and a multivitamin. She is supposed to see the doctor every 3 months for "maintenance". Cindy's diet consists largely of fruit. To the bewilderment of her physicians, Jones has even appeared to be "reverse aging." During the past four years, her hair has not only become softer but has changed back from gray to brown. The question is: How are we supposed to achieve longevity like Cindy? Does diet and lifestyle contribute to living longer, or is it a genetic lottery? Though the research remains inconclusive, it has suggested that people, like Cindy, who live beyond a 100 years have a complicated genetic makeup that helps them avoid getting age-related diseases.

Let's Practice!

Cindy Jones has become the oldest person this year. What can you do to become that old?

Instructions: Read the text again. Select all the correct answers.

What habits has Cindy Jones kept to become the oldest person this year?

- ☐ She has eaten bacon for a very long time.
- ☐ She has started reverse aging.
- ☐ She hasn't gotten into parties much.
- ☐ She has had fruit as part of her daily regimen.
- ☐ Her hair has changed from gray to brown.

Let's Practice!

Some people agree that there are some habits you're supposed to have to live a long life.

Instructions: Classify the words into the correct category.

drink very little water everyday / eat healthy food, like fruits and vegetables / visit your doctor regularly / eat fatty food, like bacon and junk food / smoke and drink alcohol regularly /
drink very little water everyday

Things you're supposed to do to live a long life

Things you're NOT supposed to do to live a long life

Extension Activity

Do some research about the oldest people in the world.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Research who the oldest person in your country is.
- Prepare some notes about what you learned.
- Share your notes with a partner - summarize what the oldest person does to stay young.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I identify who the oldest person in my country is.

☐ ☐

I take notes about the key points of the information I found.

☐ ☐

I share the information with my partner.

☐ ☐

I talk about people's habits and staying healthy.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- bacon (noun): greasy meat from the back and sides of a pig
e.g. Cindy has enjoyed bacon for over a hundred years.
- to verify (verb): to confirm that something is true
e.g. At 115 years old, she has been verified as one of two people still alive who were born in the 19th century.
- supercentenarian (noun): a person who is over 110 years old e.g. Cindy is a supercentenarian—a person who has lived beyond 110 years.
- longevity (noun): long life
e.g. Does diet and lifestyle contribute to longevity, or is it a genetic lottery?
- unparalleled (adjective): unique; with no precedents
e.g. Cindy Jones' long life isn't unparalleled.
- bill of health (expression): a statement that presents a person's physical and mental condition
e.g. Cindy's bill of health which is almost perfect has amazed doctors.
- regimen (noun): eating and exercising habits to preserve a person's health e.g. Jones' daily regimen is uncomplicated.
- bewilderment (noun): confusion
e.g. To the bewilderment of her physicians, Jones has even appeared to be "reverse aging."
- inconclusive (adjective): with no final results or outcome
e.g. The research on longevity is inconclusive.

Learning Points

The Present Perfect Tense

You use the Present Perfect tense when you talk about a past action that has a connection to the present time. The action either finished in the past, just recently finished or, in some cases, continues to the present time.

You can use the Present Perfect when there is a connection between what happened in the past and now. You use time markers like for, just, ever, and during with the Present Perfect.

The form of the Present Perfect tense is:

Subject + has/have + past participle

For example:

She has enjoyed bacon for over a hundred years.

Examples:

- Cindy is a supercentenarian—a person who has lived beyond 110 years.
- Her bill of health, which is almost perfect, has amazed medical doctors.
- Jones has even appeared to be "reverse aging."
- During the past four years, her hair has not only become softer but has changed back from gray to brown.

Learning Points

Be Supposed To

You use the structure be supposed to when you want to talk about expectations, obligations or arrangements.

You can use be supposed to to talk about situations in the past, present or future.

The structure is:

Subject + To be + supposed to + verb

She is supposed to take her blood-pressure medication and a multivitamin.

*Pronunciation tip:

When you say be supposed to, you link the /d/ and /t/ sounds together.

Like this: be suppose_to

Examples:

- Every morning with a glass of water, she is supposed to take her blood-pressure medication and a multivitamin.
- She is supposed to see the doctor every 3 months for "maintenance".
- The question is: How are we supposed to live to achieve a life likes Jones'?

